Mr. G.W. Appleyard, formerly of Carbon and now residing in Victoria, is renewing old acquaintances while visiting here with his sons and their families. It is a pleasure to welcome back an old-timer and we hope he will enjoy his visit in Carbon.

The Library received a cheque from the Provincial Government for the sum of three hundred and twenty five dollars. This money will be put towards the purchase of new books, so become a member now and watch for the latest books on the shelves.

Fish & Game Assoc.

On the evening of Jan. 15 in the Carbon Scout Hall the Fish and Game Association held an evening of entertainment showing outdoor life moving pictures from the Dept. of Extension. There were also shown some pictures of local sportsmen fishing at Spray Lakes and hunting in the Rocky Mountain House area. The President, G.W. Schell gave a report on the activities of the Assn. and what it stands for. An invitation was given for more local people to join and support the Carbon Fish & Game Association. The annual membership fee is $2.50. After the pictures the Assn. invited everyone to stay for free coffee, sandwiches and cake.

The Carbon Branch of the Canadian Legion held their regular meeting on Monday night. Officers for the coming year are:

President: George Appleyard
Sec.-Treas.: Steve Hominuk
Sergeant-at-Arms: Stan Gouldie

Plans were discussed for the renovation of the old poolroom into their regular hall. It is to be hoped that all members of the Legion will help in this work.

The centre of activity this week is definitely the curling rink. We hear—"Isn't it wonderful not having dishes to wash at home? How come we got a twelve A.M. draw? No, not at eight in the morning, too?" A mother with too many children to manage at a meal in public "I ain't goin' to take it settin' down." Yes, curling is fun, but I'm sure many of the women who sit up to peel potatoes, bake pies and plan meals will heave a sigh of relief when it is a thing of the past. A special vote of thanks is due them for the excellent meals and cheerful smiles they dish up so freely.

C. Smith, G. Reddekopp, F. Emery and G. Park of Acme defeated Templekoff of Trochu in the final of one event and also won the Grand Aggregate. The Griffith rink of Rockyford won over Impey of Swallow in the final of the other primary event.

Cards of Thanks

We find it a pleasure to thank those who entertained in our honor during our last month home. We greatly appreciated the friendly spirit given with each gift.

G. Kary, H. Hunt, M. Ohlhauser

To all our relations, friends and neighbors—we wish to thank you for the beautiful flowers and the expressions of sympathy extended to us during our recent bereavement in the passing of a loving husband and father. Your kindness is deeply appreciated. Mrs. Alice Hay and Family.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to all our friends for the flowers and expressions of sympathy sent during our recent sad bereavement, especially to Dr. McFarlane, Dr. Whitmore, and the staff of the Drumheller hospital.

Mr. Flaws, David & Mary.

The curling club are raffling a washing machine to raise funds for the new curling rink. Be sure to buy at least one ticket.

Bang's Vaccination

Dr. G. Peppin of Drumheller has just completed a vaccinating and blood testing program in the Carbon district. Approximately 400 calves have been vaccinated against Bang's disease and 150 cows tested for the same.

If anyone has been overlooked and desires this work done, please contact Les Bramley at Carbon.

EDITORIALS of the WEEK

Your Privilege and Your Responsibility

This is an election year. Who or what are you going to vote for? Whom do you want to represent you in Ottawa? No, I'm not trying to usurp your right as a citizen of a democratic country. You don't have to answer but do you know what you would answer? Read your papers, listen to your radio, and start to form your own opinions. Think about it now! Read all sides of the many questions that will arise, and sort out the wheat from the tares. This is your responsibility.

This is a young country with innumerable possibilities and untold wealth. You will want to vote for the government that will develop our natural resources for our direct or indirect benefit; that will not pocket our hard earned taxes; that will not spend our money on useless projects, and that will keep at least half of its half of its election promises.

If you think our present government is a good one and could answer why you think this if challenged, then vote for it again. If you are not satisfied with it, find out how you can best obtain the kind of government you think you should have. Be sure you know what your candidate represents before you send him to Ottawa. Vote for the one that will do the most for your country and your fellow man and, in so doing, the most for you.

It is up to you as a Canadian citizen to find the right answers to your questions about government. Whether you do find the right answers and follow this by the right action depends on how much interest you take in finding more out about the political parties that are nominating candidates to represent you in the Federal Government. Take an active interest and vote because you want to and not because your neighbor thinks you should.

GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

The Water Resources of Alberta

In the best interests of our citizens, present and future, your government carefully conserves the water resources of Alberta. The Water Resources Act and Regulations provide that applications for the diversion of water for any purpose are subject to precedence for the following purposes: Domestic, Municipal, Industrial, Irrigation, Water Power.

Alberta's conservation and development projects include:

LAKE STABILIZATION PROJECTS:
To prevent or retard depletion of surface and ground water supplies, structures are being placed in the outlets of Alberta's major lakes. Pipes are inserted through the dams to maintain steady flow in the outlet creeks. These projects have a water conservation value as well as furnishing a habitat for fish and game. In co-operation with Ducks Unlimited, a total of 29 projects have been built since 1946.

ASSISTANCE TO IRRIGATION DISTRICTS
The Alberta Government designs and helps to construct laterals for smaller irrigation districts erected under the Irrigation Districts Act. Irrigation Districts at Macleod and Ross Creek have been assisted. The Alberta Government has spent more than $4,000,000 on the St. Mary and Milk Rivers Irrigation Development, and expects to spend another $3,750,000 on this beneficial project. Distributory Canals are also planned for the Bow River Irrigation Development.

WATER POWER IN ALBERTA
In 1932 there was 59,450 developed horsepower with 155,000 acre feet of storage. By 1952 there was 209,050 developed horsepower with 585,000 acre feet of storage.

Funny and Otherwise

Monica: "What kind of stone is in Jane's engagement ring?"
Anne: "A rolling stone. I had it once."

Two privates were discussing their N.C.O.s in the canteen. Said one: "I hear Sergeant Brown's had a heart attack."

"Didn't know he had a heart!" remarked the other.

"Now Tommy, spell straight."

"S-t-r-a-i-g-h-t, miss."

"Correct. Now what does it mean?"

"Without soda."

Husband: "From the glimpse I had of her this morning, I rather like our new cook. There seems to be plenty of go about her."

Wife: "Yes, she's gone."

Mrs. Jones returned from a visit to the doctor very cross indeed. "Do you know that he charged me three dollars for painting my throat with iodine?" she complained.

"I don't call that very much," replied Mrs. Brown.

"Not much!" said Mrs. Jones. "Why, I had my kitchen white-washed all over for five."

Father: "Hullo! Where's Alfred gone to?"

Mother: "If the ice is as thick as he thinks it is, he's gone skating; but if it is as thin as I think it is, he's gone bathing."

The Sunday school lesson was from 2 Kings xxii, and read:

"Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign and he reigned thirty and one years in Jerusalem." On describing the lesson to his mother, John, aged four, said, "The lesson was about a good rain and there was a little boy named Josiah and it began to rain when he was eight, and when he was thirty-one it was still drizzlin'."

"You will marry," said the fortune teller, "a tall, dark man—"

"Oh, dear, how shall I break it to Albert? He's five feet two and ginger!"

"Why so offhanded with him? Does he owe you something?"

"No, but he wants to."

"Aren't you the thought-reader who was entertaining the company a couple of hours ago by finding needles and other small objects they had hidden?"

"Yes."

"Well, what has kept you here so long?"

"I'm looking for my hat!"

A quack was selling a tonic which he declared would make men live to a great age. "Look at me," he said, " hale and hearty, and I'm over 300 years old."

"Is he really that old?" asked a listener of the quack's youthful assistant.

"I can't say," was the reply. "I've only worked for him 150 years!"

"Dad," said a small boy, "what is a diplomat?"

"A diplomat," replied his indulgent parent, "is a man who can convince his wife that she wants an umbrella when she wants a fur coat."

Recipe

BEST-YET OAT COOKIES

Sweet crisp cookies — you might put some of them together in pairs, with thick raspberry jam or a date filling.

2½ cups once-sifted pastry flour or 2¼ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour

3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder

1 teaspoon salt

2 cups rolled oats

¾ cup butter or Blue Bonnet

Margarine

1¼ cups lightly-packed brown sugar

3 tablespoons milk

1½ teaspoons vanilla

Grease cookie sheets. Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate).

Sift flour, Magic Baking Powder and salt together twice; mix in rolled oats.

Cream butter or margarine; gradually blend in sugar.

Add flour mixture to creamed mixture about a quarter at a time, alternating with three additions of milk and combining thoroughly after each addition.

Roll out dough to ¼-inch thickness on lightly-floured baking board; cut with floured 2½-inch cookie cutter and arrange on prepared cookie sheets.

Bake in preheated oven about 12 minutes.

Yield: 5 dozen cookies.

Indian Chief Protests "Land Grab" By Paleface

VANCOUVER.—Chief Joe Mathias plans war on the paleface unless plans for what he terms an Indian land grab are abandoned.

The 75-year-old chief of the Capilano tribe in North Vancouver has been aroused by a City of Vancouver offer of $25,000 for two acres in the Kitsilano Reserve for a park.

"Trying to get land for a song," said Chief Mathias. "White man never changes. He still wants to get land from Indians too cheap."

An industrialist is reported to have offered the Indians $40,000 for the land but the city has refused to rezone it for industrial use.

Chief Mathias says he may carry a protest to Queen Elizabeth if he gets an invitation to the Coronation next June.

"If I go to the Coronation I want to talk with the Queen," he said. "I want to remind her of the charter granted by her great-great grandmother, Queen Victoria. It clearly states Indians must not lose their land without their own consent."

The giant clams of the East Indies weigh about 500 pounds apiece.

Does Pedigree Seed Win Prizes At International Grain Shows?

Does pedigree seed win prizes at International Seed and Grain Shows? That is a question that has often been asked and in order to find an answer, a circular letter was sent by the Cereal Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, to all Canadians who won prizes for cereal grains at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair and the International Grain and Hay show in 1950-51.

While all the winners did not reply to the questionnaire, a sufficient number replied to give a fairly reliable answer as to whether the winning samples were taken from registered, certified or commercial sources.

The results of the survey are reported by J. C. G. Fraser of the Cereal Division, as follows:

Beans: Four growers replied, three had grown their own but unregistered seed for some years, one had used registered seed obtained from an Experimental Farm.

Barley: Twenty winners replied that their seed was from registered stock and three that their samples were selected from certified stock. Two had used commercial seed.

Oats: In this crop most of the winners had purchased their material from members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association or from one of the Experimental Farms.

Out of forty-four winning samples, thirty-three were from registered seed, and seven were from commercial seed which traced originally to registered seed some years previously. One sample was from certified seed and three from home grown seed of unknown pedigree.

Rye: Eight growers replied, three of whom grew registered seed and the two samples were from a European Seed Company who originated the variety, which would likely mean registered status had it been grown in this country. Three had their own commercial grade seed.

Peas: Six winners, three with registered seed and two with commercial seed and one had used his own seed which he had grown for so many years that he did not know where he had originally obtained his seed.

Wheat: Out of twenty-nine winners reporting, thirteen stated that their winning samples were from registered or elite seed; seven were from varieties that could only be certified at the time, four were from commercial sources and five were from home grown seed of unknown origin. The main sources of supply were the Experimental Farms and Stations, together with Universities or Agricultural Colleges.

Grasses and Clovers: Only seven returns were received from these classes, two clovers were from registered stocks and one from certified seed. The four timothy samples were all from commercial seed stocks.

Summing up, seventy-two growers replied to the questionnaire and reported on a total of one hundred and twenty-nine sample as follows:

	Registered	Certified	Commercial	Own	Total
1950	35	7	5	4	51
1951	41	9	14	14	78
Total	76	16	19	18	129

This means that nearly six out of every 10 samples came from Registered seed or better; over 12 per cent. of the samples were from Certified seed; less than 15 per cent. were from commercial stocks and about the same percentage were from home grown seed of uncertain pedigree.

The facts submitted should be of more than passing interest to those organizations which are primarily interested in promoting, growing and encouraging the use of good seed. At the same time, says Mr. Fraser, one cannot help but wonder why the percentage of registered seed is not higher when consideration is given to the time, labour, educational work and money which has been extended in promoting the use of good seed.

The cue bid response to a double was used at the wrong time on this hand from match play. West opened One Diamond and North doubled at both tables. Over East's Two Diamonds, the first South bid a direct Four Hearts and made ten tricks in spite of the bad break in trumps.

In Room 2 East bounced to Three Diamonds but this should not have affected the issue. South, however, could not resist the fancy bid of Four Diamonds which led to a contract of Four Spades by North.

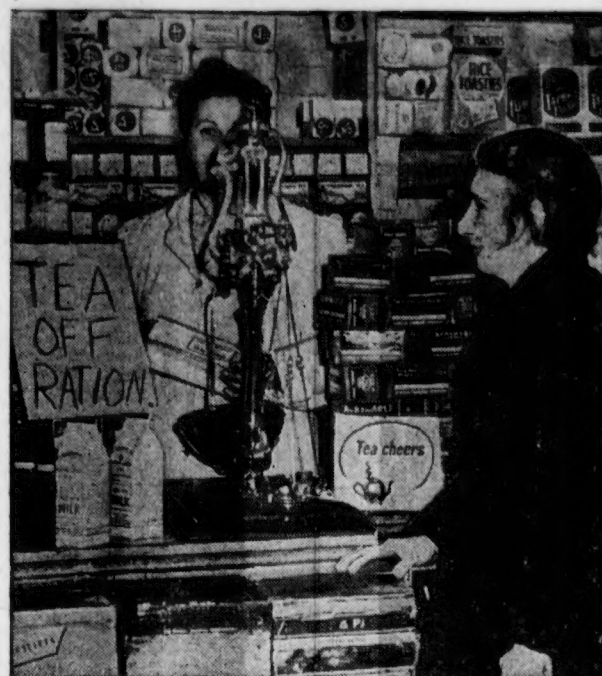

East led Diamonds and North tried for ten tricks on a cross-ruff. On the third round of Clubs West over-ruffed Dummy's ♣ 9 and returned ♠ 3 for a two-trick defeat. A different line of play might succeed, but there was no need to pick a suit with seven trumps only.

Claims Second Toe Growing Longer

WELLINGTON, N.Z. — A New Zealand foot expert claimed that people are gradually growing longer second-toes, a throw-back to the days when the foot worked like a hand for tree-climbing purposes.

Dr. Leslie Will said he had observed a clear tendency toward longer second toes. But he suggested modern shoes may have more to do with it than tree climbing.

He explained that primitive men had long second toes and big toes that worked in the opposite direction, like thumbs, so that the feet could grasp branches.

Landlubbers Do Not Understand New Bell System

WELFLEET, Mass. — When the bell in the town clock strikes eight, the residents of this Cape Cod town know it's either noon, four o'clock, eight or midnight.

The ship's bell idea was approved by the annual town meeting as in keeping with the town's seagoing tradition. The bell was adjusted recently.

So far, the only persons mystified by the new bell system are visiting landlubbers who know nothing about the salty system of time keeping.

Aboard ship, bells divide the day into four-hour segments. Twelve o'clock is eight bells; 12:30 is marked by one bell; 1 o'clock by two bells and so on until eight bells at 4 o'clock and again at 8 o'clock.

TRY AND STOP ME!

"Don't you criticize dear mamma," shrilled the missus. "Everything I am today I owe to her." He flipped a quarter over to his wife. "Mail that to mamma," he mocked cruelly. "It'll square your account with her."

Doctor Umglucklich cleared his throat with embarrassment, and then resolutely reminded his richest—and crankiest—patient, "I hate to bring this up, but that cheque you sent me came back." "Exactly," said his patient grimly. "So did my arthritis."

Arthur Hornblow, Jr., defines poise as the ability to finish telling a joke while the other fellow is reaching for the check.

A newly crowned actress confided that her real love was a 60-year-old banker in Wall Street. "Every time he phones me to the coast," she purred, "I get chinchillas up and down my spine."

U.S. COURT RETURNS BOY TO PARENTS

Ten years ago, Ivan Pirecnik, then but a year old, was taken from his home in Yugoslavia by Nazi Gestapo men who shot his father and put him in an orphanage. He was adopted by a German couple, Mr. and Mrs. Sirsch of Kassel. When Mrs. Pirecnik traced her son, she pleaded to have him returned but the court of the U.S. high commission ruled that Ivan should stay in Germany. On appeal, however, Mrs. Pirecnik was given custody of her son, shown with her after the reunion.—Central Press Canadian.

A "truth drug" that makes a person confess everything is reported available at drug stores in London, obtainable without prescription. How about it, sir? Have you any fears as to your wife using the truth drug on you? You know what Gilbert White said: "The man who has no secrets from his wife, either has no secrets or no wife."

How About the Taste?

When a cigar holds the ash a long time it doesn't necessarily mean it is a good cigar. It is just rolled well. The way to judge a good cigar is this. Knock off the ash. If a sharp glowing point remains, it is a good cigar. The sharper the point the better the cigar.

The Better Of It

Discussing the question as to whether the female of the species, in doing housekeeping, works harder than the male engaged in factory or office work, a reader claims the ladies have all the best of it. "My wife has so many labor-saving devices around the place," says he, "that she is through her work by eleven every morning. She also developed a house-keeping speed technique by reading two books on housekeeping. I am not irritated because housekeeping has been made easy. What irritates me is the refusal of women to admit it."

Investigations Are Thorough

When Scotland Yard detectives investigate a mystery they are really thorough. Recently seeking to find the writer of some poison pen letters, Scotland Yard men went from door to door in the section where the letters were mailed asking for specimens of handwriting. Specimens obtained numbered in the thousands. On another case where a red hair was found in the vicinity of the body of a murder victim, the Scotland Yard men interviewed every red-haired person within a 40-mile radius of the scene of the crime.

Satisfactory Arrangement

An extremely successful tailor in Paris takes much of his payment in trade. It all started when a restaurant owner delayed payment for a suit. The tailor said he would take his payment in meals at the restaurant. This inspired him to make similar propositions. He even paid for an operation by agreeing to make the surgeon several suits. He also has a deal with a concert violinist. In return for clothes, the violinist gives a monthly concert at the tailor's house. Since taking payments in trade, the tailor's cash business has increased. His work is good and his "in trade" customers have recommended him to their regular customers.

Boy Wonder

Not all the "boy wonders" of the business world are on this side of the Atlantic. Take Gianni Angelli, probably Italy's outstanding business man. He is only 31. His Fiat company employs over 50,000 men engaged in manufacturing automobiles, trains, planes, tractors and ships' engines. Angelli also owns a professional soccer football team, a newspaper and a skiing resort.

VIRGIL

Plenty Of Oil, Coal Reserves In The West

WINNIPEG. — Western Canadian proved oil reserves now stand at 2,000,000,000 barrels, the annual western meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy was told here.

By the end of 1951, the proved oil reserves of western Canada stood at more than 1,500,000,000 barrels, and with "several interesting discoveries so far this year," they should hit the two billion mark, Vernon Taylor, management assistant, producing department, Imperial Oil limited, told his audience.

Also speaking at the energy symposium in the Royal Alexandra hotel was Dr. N. H. Grace of the Alberta research council who noted that at present requirements, there is enough coal in western Canada for 3,000 years to come.

The new Alberta oil developments haven't been "drilled up," Mr. Taylor said, but it was "not unreasonable to bring the proved oil reserves up to the two billion figure."

Recent discoveries in Manitoba had "proved interesting," Mr. Taylor said, "but it is somewhat difficult to tell how much will eventually be produced."

Discussing the sources of energy available in North America, and the world, Mr. Taylor said that somewhere in the neighborable "fossil fuel" energy is found in the form of coal, while about one per cent. of the world figure existed as petroleum or natural gas.

In contrast with this, about 50 per cent. of energy uses in the U.S. depends on oil and gas, and this proportion is expected to rise to well above 60 per cent. by 1975 according to recent authorities, he said.

Dr. Grace said 90 per cent. of Canada's estimated coal reserves were in western Canada.

The director of research for the Alberta Research council, said however, that the cost of coal must be kept down, and this could only be achieved through the vigorous application of research and development of all phases of the industry.

"The proportion of the total energy needs which will be met by coal, will depend, to a considerable extent, on the relative costs of the other sources of energy," he stated.

Dr. Grace noted that in the United States about $23,000,000 was spent on coal research, of which $7,500,000 was provided by the U.S. government.

At the same time, upwards of $121,000,000 was spent by the petroleum industry on research, and this marked the difference in industries, Dr. Grace said.

SPEEDING TRAIN BRINGS DEATH TO 120 — The "Night Scot" is one of three trains that collided at Harrow, Eng., in one of the worst train wrecks in British records. More than 120 were killed, at least 300 injured. The "Night Scot", travelling at high speed, plowed through a nine-coach London-bound train, tossing the coaches off the rails and mowing down commuters standing on the Harrow platform. It was the worst train wreck in Britain since 1915 when 227 were killed.

How To Avoid Fumbles

If there is anything that makes a football coach feel happy it is finding a player who is capable of holding onto that ball, no matter how hard he is hit or how hard he lands on the ground. It is only natural for the coach to feel really happy under such circumstances because the record book shows that fumbles have won or lost more games, especially close, hard-fought games, than any other single play. And you can develop the game-winning skill of being able to hold onto the ball under all circumstances if you use the following system.

As soon as you receive the ball place one end of it under your arm-pit as snugly as you can and hold onto the other end with a tight, hard grip, keeping the fingers well spread. Keep your elbow close to your side.

Always hold the ball in the arm farthest away from the possible tackle.

The moment you are tackled wrap your free arm around the ball and concentrate on holding onto it with all your strength.

Finally, always keep this fact in mind. Many fumbles occur when the ball is snapped or handed to the ball-carrier as the play starts. You can avoid this by taking the ball with your hands, not in your stomach or in a cradle formed by your arms. Take the ball with your hands relaxed.

Listen to the Sports College coast-to-coast radio show on the Trans-Canada network of the C.B.C. each Saturday. The station nearest your home will give you the time of the broadcast. To become a member simply write to Sports College, Box 99, Toronto 1, Ont. Membership is free and open to everyone.

ed, fingers well spread and don't grab at it hurriedly, keep cool and take it smoothly. Ten or fifteen minutes drill every day during which you practise taking the ball from the quarterback, on direct passes from centre or on end runs will soon develop the skill you need.

Remember, learn to hold onto that ball and you'll make a play that really counts, for you and for your team.

Courage

It is the general opinion that people are born with degrees of courage and that having courage is just a matter of will-power. Actually, both these ideas miss the goal by a mile.

Modern psychology proves very conclusively, that courage is something that people acquire through their experience in their home, at school from the things they read and the things they hear. Being courageous or brave is just a habit. If you haven't got the habit you can develop it. It's all a matter of the things that you say, do, think, feel and hear, most of which you can control.

So remember, courage is something everybody can develop. It is not a mysterious quality beyond the reach of any who are not "born" with it.

Should Athletes Eat Before Going to Bed?

The question "Should athletes eat before going to bed?" is one of the most popular received at Sports College. The answer is fundamentally simple. If you are hungry by all means eat but eat lightly (in order not to spoil your appetite for breakfast the next day—which should be a good meal) and also be sure to eat easily digested foods so that your sleep will not be disturbed. Digestion slows down at night and thus a normal meal cannot be handled as well. Good bedtime foods are cereal and fruit; fruit; hot or cold Ovaltine; poached egg (if real hungry). Avoid heavy, very sweet and fried foods at this time.

ON A BRIGHT OCTOBER MORN

The birds have left the maples and poplars:
No meadow lark sings on the fence post now.

There is no song to meet me;
No melody to greet me
On a bright October morn.

The canaries have gone from the lilac bush;
The orioles from the hedgerows too;

There is no song to cheer me;
No flashing colors near me,
On a bright October morn.

The sparrows are still in the stable loft;

The woodpecker in the wood lot bare.

With chirpings they shall meet me,
And drummings, too, shall greet me
On a bright October morn.

French Historian Says Joan Of Arc Was Never Burned At Stake

By RUSSELL HOWE

Paris.—A French historian has published a long, learned thesis to prove that Joan of Arc never was burned at the stake and that the English burned a masked "witch" in her place. Joan lived on and was married five years after her "execution", historian Jean Grimod states.

His thesis, which has created a furore in the French religious world, asserts further that Joan was not born at the national shrine of Doremy, and that she was not called d'Arc.

She was, according to Grimod, the illegitimate daughter of the Duke of Orleans, brother of King Charles VI of France and Isabel of Bavaria.

Saint Joan—she was canonized in 1920—is one of the most revered of French saints. Wreaths are heaped around her statue in Paris on her festival day, May 30.

Father Doncoeur, Jesuit expert on St. Joan, speaking to reporters on Grimod's thesis—entitled "Joan of Arc Burned"—termed it "a terrible scandal."

Lucien Fabre, author of one of the best-known Lives of Joan of Arc, said the thesis was "attractive", but not strictly provable.

Most historians gave the date of Joan's birth as Jan. 15, 1412, and the place as Domremy, hamlet on the border of Champagne and Lorraine.

They agree that in 1428 Joan, saying she was prompted by voices, persuaded the local commander to let her go to the Dauphin, Charles VII, at Chinon in Touraine. At that time, the British and their Burgundian allies were in possession of all the northern provinces of France except Brittany, and were besieging Orleans.

She demanded a troop of soldiers to relieve the beleaguered city and, fighting with them, drove the British away in 1429. Later, she led the Dauphin to be crowned at Rheims.

A year later, Joan was tried on charges of heresy and witchcraft by a court of ecclesiastics.

The generally-accepted version is that she was burned at the stake by the English in the market place of Rouen on May 30, 1431, when she was 19 years old.

Grimod points to the constant questions of the court concerning Joan's origins and sets out to prove that the English knew them. Therefore, to avoid burning someone of royal birth, they burned a masked "witch" in her place, he says.

She thus was spared the legendary execution which "is not mentioned in any religious, official or judicial records," the thesis states.

The historian says Joan's coat of arms was that of the French royal family, but bearing the brisure mark of bastardy.

Grimod says Joan was married in Luxembourg in 1436, five years after her "execution", and may have spent the intervening years in exile in England.

He says her marriage certificate, signed by the Dean of Metz, is still in existence and adds that evidence exists of a visit by Joan to Orleans in 1439, when she was given 210 gold pounds by the municipality "for help to the town during the siege by the English."

A similar gift, he declares, is on the records of the city of Tours.

Joan's existence, the thesis concludes, is traceable up to 1443—12 years after her "execution".

Finishes Job He Started Thirty-Nine Years Ago

EDMONTON.—James R. Lowery, 68, of Vancouver, was admitted to the Alberta Bar—39 years after he graduated in law from the University of Alberta and about 30 years after he passed his bar examinations.

"I don't like to start something and never finish it," he explained to Chief Justice G. B. O'Connor, who admitted him to the Bar.

Mr. Lowery's intended law career was put off after university graduation while he fought in the First World War, being injured at Vimy Ridge and retiring with the rank of major. After writing his Bar examinations in 1923 he became interested in oil.

Mr. Lowery said, however, that he won't practice law. He just wanted to join the association of barristers as he had planned many years ago.

National League

Hockey Notes

35th N.H.L. Season

The 1952-53 season will mark the 35th consecutive season that the National Hockey League has been in operation. The N.H.L. was formed on November 22, 1917, and the first games were played on December 19, 1917. Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Wanderers, Ottawa and Toronto were the four teams that competed in the League the first season. Toronto was the only city that had artificial ice at that time.

Two New Captains

Two of the six National Hockey League teams will start the 1952-53 season with new team captains. Bill Gadsby, experienced Chicago defenseman, was made skipper of the Black Hawks this season while fiery Ted Lindsay, veteran left winger of the Detroit Red Wings, will captain the Stanley Cup champions this year. Gadsby succeeds rugged Jack Stewart who has retired from the N.H.L., although Bill Mosienko filled in as captain of the Hawks for a spell last season after Stewart left the club. Lindsay takes over from Sid Abel who has moved over to Chicago as coach.

Gadsby is starting his seventh season with Chicago and has been the team's steadiest defenseman for the last few years. Lindsay is commencing his ninth season with Detroit and although he is only 27 years old now he's been the All-Star left winger for four of the last five years.

Allan Stanley will again captain the New York Rangers while veterans Milt Schmidt will skipper Boston, Butch Bouchard will captain Montreal and Ted Kennedy will skipper Toronto.

Took a Long Time

"I had to wait to become an executive before I finally made one of these affairs", said Johnny Crawford at the sixth annual N.H.L. All-Star game in Detroit the other day. Crawford was referring to the fact that in his 12-year stint with the Boston Bruins as a defenseman he had never been invited to attend an All-Star game. Johnny was picked to the First All-Star Team in 1945-46, the year before the annual All-Star game was inaugurated. This season he will assist in the broadcasting of all home and away games of the Boston Bruins.

New Play-by-Play Announcers

The 1952-53 season will see the unveiling of two new play-by-play broadcasters in the National Hockey League. Fred Cusick, late of the United States Navy, will air the home and away games of the Boston Bruins, while Danny Gallivan, formerly of Halifax, N.S., will handle the Montreal Canadiens' home games. Johnny Crawford, former star defenseman of the Bruins, will assist Cusick with the commentary of the Bruins' games. Cusick succeeds Frank Ryan and Gallivan replaces Doug Smith.

How Scribes Picked 'Em

In the fourth annual pre-season poll conducted by The Hockey News, the International Hockey Weekly, 17 hockey writers in the six National Hockey League cities, picked the N.H.L. teams to finish the 1952-53 season as follows: 1. Detroit, 2. Montreal, 3. Toronto, 4. Boston, 5. Chicago, 6. New York. Not one writer picked Detroit to finish lower than second and no one picked Canadiens to end up lower than third.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

They Still Love Clowns

By Charlotte McCarthy

THE shabby tent seemed to be bursting out at the seams with flurry and excitement. It was the biggest town the little circus had ever played, and in a fresh surge of apprehension, Steve Booth, the owner, rushed around in a dither of anxiety, getting in everyone's way. "Please, Mark, don't ask me again. I know you were a good clown in your day, but can't you understand that people just don't go for a clown act anymore?"

Mark Castle, his eyes tense and troubled under their shaggy brows, wiped his bald head with a grimy bandana. "If you'd just give me a chance, Mr. Booth, you'd see they still love clowns."

Looking down into the pleading eyes, he realized the uselessness of trying to reason with him. "Listen, Mark. If there's a gap in the billing... any trouble," with an old trouper's superstition, he crossed his fingers, "I'll let you go on. Okay? In the meantime, for the love of Mike, feed that old cat before she yowls her head off."

From behind the tent an excited, silvery grey horse whinnied, and there was the rising drone of the barker's voice beginning. The big cat, a tawny, mangy old lion, showed brownish teeth in a snarl, as the man approached. "Quiet, Maisie, those teeth of yours ain't much more use than my own." There just had to be a gap, somehow. He'd show these people who thought he was finished that he could keep a crowd amused, if only he had a chance.

Inside the tent, the seats were filling rapidly. There was a steady hum of conversation, interspersed with the complaining grunts of an old bear. The sickish, sweet smell of candy and taffy apples mingled with the acrid tang of the animals, and from a trapeze, a faded blonde swung head down.

He was trying to move a heavy barrel, when he felt the boss's hand on his shoulder. "Pete's hurt his arm, so I guess I'll have to keep my promise. But if the crowd doesn't like you, I don't want to hear another word."

The excitement of the moment was a tangible thing almost, tightening his throat. "They'll like me, Mr. Booth." It was a prayer and a promise.

The old costume was a trifle tight and his hand shook as he applied the grease paint. "I thought they'd put that act in mothballs years ago." He overheard the remark made by a young acrobat.

He had forgotten how a sea of faces appeared, staring up at you. Hundreds of pale moons, whose reaction to your act make up the difference between success and failure. He had forgotten, too, the tense fear of the first moment, remembering only the thrill of their applause. Somehow, he just had to make them like him.

Slowly, a trifle woodenly, he went into his act. A tiny girl in the front row began sobbing weakly, terrified of the painted face so close to her. His shoulders ached, and there was a sticky river of perspiration between his shoulders. Just let this act go over, just once again, to prove that he had been good, still was, and he'd be glad to go back to the quiet routine of helping look after the animals.

One after the other, pitifully, like a lonely child trying to bribe a friendship with candy, he drew on his bag of tricks. Waited tensely, agonizingly, for the laughter he wanted so desperately. Waited until the act was almost over, and there was only the rustle of paper bags, and whispers, sibilant as tearing tissue paper.

There was just a few moments left, and though knowing, with an awful despondency, that he must face the ridicule of the others, the clown, like the seasoned old trouper he was, put everything into a final shuffling dance. Suddenly, it was all around him. Laughter, hysterical almost in its intensity, that reverberated through the tent, and rose to a crescendo unlike anything provoked by the other acts.

He realized then, how close to complete exhaustion he had been, and his heart pounding, almost on the verge of collapse, stumbled off the stage. His voice was a triumphant wheeze. "I guess I showed 'em, eh, boss? But maybe I'll stick to animal tending just the same. That's pretty strenuous work for an old fellow."

"You certainly did show them, Mark." His hand was very gentle on the thin shoulder.

Jimmy, the midget, inclined a willing ear to the boss's whispering lips, and via the grapevine, the message passed from ear to ear: "Don't let Mark find out what happened."

And late that night, a tired, completely happy old clown, who was forever done with clowning, puffed contentedly on his pipe, mercifully spared the knowledge that Mitzzy, an impish little monkey, had found her way to the stage, and from the background had mimicked every movement of his last act, sending the bored crowd into gales of mirth.

SOUR CREAM BUNS

● Scald 1½ c. milk, ½ c. granulated sugar, 2 tps. salt and ¼ c. butter or margarine; cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, measure into a large bowl ½ c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, THEN stir well.

Sieve ½ c. cold mashed potato and mix in 2 unbeaten egg yolks and ½ c. thick sour cream; stir into yeast mixture and stir in lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in ¾ c. once-sifted bread flour; beat until smooth. Work in 3 c. (about) once-sifted bread flour to make a soft dough; grease top. Cover and set in a warm place, free from draught.

Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough, grease top, cover and again let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough and turn out on lightly-floured board; roll to ½" thickness and cut into ¾" rounds and place, well apart, on greased cookie sheets. Using a floured thimble, make a deep depression in the centre of each bun. Brush rounds of dough with mixture of 1 slightly-beaten egg white and 1 tbs. water; sprinkle generously with granulated sugar. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Deepen depressions in buns and fill with thick raspberry jam. Bake in hot oven, 425°, about 15 minutes. Yield — 3 dozen large buns.

THE TILLERS

On January 13, at 6:30 in the Evening the SDA Church was the scene of a beautiful wedding as Wanetta Krenzlea of Beiseker, and Dave Trenchuk of Myrnam, were united in the holy bonds of Matrimony.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle Mr. Bernhard Krenzler, and Pastor G.E. Taylor, President of the Alberta Conference of Sevenday Adventists, officiated. The church was attractively decorated with evergreen boughs woven in a trellis work arch, and sprinkled with artificial snow. Fern on either side of the rostrum completed it distinctively. The relatives pews were easily distinguished, having on the corner a small wedding bell with ribbon, uniquely arranged with two small evergreen boughs. Beautiful wedding music was played by Juanitta Ireton of Calgary. Mrs. Della Trenchuck nee Huether was soloist, singing, "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride chose to wear a traditional gown of satin, with lace yolk at front and back, lace lily point sleeves, and a small train. Her bonnet-style head piece of satin and lace was worn with a finger tip veil having several bows appliqued on it. She carried an arm style bouquet of red roses with rosebuds streaming on ribbons belows.

Attendants of the bride were Matron of honor only sister of the bride, Mrs. Irene Siemens of Winfield B.C. wearing pastel green. Bridesmaids were Marjorie Leiske of Beiseker, in yellow, Norma Wetzel of Bentley, in mauve. They carried bouquets of carnations of yellow, mauve, and green respectively, all arranged in colonial style. The flower girl, Gaylene Krenzler, wore a floor length dainty nylon frock and carried a unique bouquet of small yellow mums. Gaylene is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levern Krenzler.

Attendants of the groom were Donnie Huether of Beiseker and Walter Dorash of Edmonton.

After the ceremony the reception took place in the Beiseker Hall under the leadership of John Leiske. After the program a wedding lunch was served. The toast to the bride was given by John Leiske.

For her going away apparel the bride chose a tailored royal blue suit with winter white hat and gloves, and red-wine shoes and handbag. The happy couple motored south for their honeymoon and upon their return will make their home in Edmonton. We all wish Mr. and Mrs. Trenchuk the best life can offer.
